By JANET McNEIL

"Women: The merry month of May"

Special to the Sun-Observer

May customs associated with the month of May have passed into nostalgic memory. Fewer girls with their flowing hair and gauzy frocks affix a decoration to thePerson of the day (Photo 2)....

Students danced around a Maypole, bringing back quaint memories. The girls and a few boys among the junior class were on the terrace of the women's residence hall.

The Maypole dance at the college was attended by students of all classes. The dance was a success, and the girls enjoyed themselves thoroughly.

The May King and Queen were crowned on April 28, 1944, at 11:45 p.m. in the college gymnasium. The queen was chosen by popular vote and the king was selected by vote among the female students. The couple was crowned King and Queen of the May Festival.

The May queen, wearing a crown of flowers, granted an interview to the college newspaper. She said that she was chosen because of her leadership abilities and her enthusiasm for college activities.

The May queen and king were crowned at the annual May Festival. The festival was held on May 8, 1944, and included a parade, a dance, and a variety of activities.

In the early years, the girls who were crowned king and queen were expected to be on the front porch of their residence hall.

The May queen and king were crowned at the annual May Festival. The festival was held on May 8, 1944, and included a parade, a dance, and a variety of activities.

In the early years, the girls who were crowned king and queen were expected to be on the front porch of their residence hall.

The May queen and king were crowned at the annual May Festival. The festival was held on May 8, 1944, and included a parade, a dance, and a variety of activities.

In the early years, the girls who were crowned king and queen were expected to be on the front porch of their residence hall.

The May queen and king were crowned at the annual May Festival. The festival was held on May 8, 1944, and included a parade, a dance, and a variety of activities.

In the early years, the girls who were crowned king and queen were expected to be on the front porch of their residence hall.

The May queen and king were crowned at the annual May Festival. The festival was held on May 8, 1944, and included a parade, a dance, and a variety of activities.

In the early years, the girls who were crowned king and queen were expected to be on the front porch of their residence hall.

The May queen and king were crowned at the annual May Festival. The festival was held on May 8, 1944, and included a parade, a dance, and a variety of activities.

In the early years, the girls who were crowned king and queen were expected to be on the front porch of their residence hall.

The May queen and king were crowned at the annual May Festival. The festival was held on May 8, 1944, and included a parade, a dance, and a variety of activities.

In the early years, the girls who were crowned king and queen were expected to be on the front porch of their residence hall.

The May queen and king were crowned at the annual May Festival. The festival was held on May 8, 1944, and included a parade, a dance, and a variety of activities.

In the early years, the girls who were crowned king and queen were expected to be on the front porch of their residence hall.

The May queen and king were crowned at the annual May Festival. The festival was held on May 8, 1944, and included a parade, a dance, and a variety of activities.

In the early years, the girls who were crowned king and queen were expected to be on the front porch of their residence hall.

The May queen and king were crowned at the annual May Festival. The festival was held on May 8, 1944, and included a parade, a dance, and a variety of activities.

In the early years, the girls who were crowned king and queen were expected to be on the front porch of their residence hall.