Blurred Moments

This series is all about captured moments with a twist. Burning is meant to represent that these moments, these memories can disappear at any time. They can go up in smoke.

The acrylic pours are to represent the nature of memory. Our minds work in interesting ways. There are things we remember more than others which are represented in the bolder areas of the acrylic pour paintings. The paintings also have a flow to them. Memory ebbs and flows.

The deeper meaning behind this series is to cherish the moments with the people you love. Life has a funny way of changing. Be present with the people around you. Those moments might not come again so remember them and cherish them as long as you can.
