Every Day New Perspective

My art pieces are about the issues lgbtqa+ individuals face daily in order to live in our society, where there are great pressures to conform to a heterosexual and cisgender ideal. Lgbtqa+ individuals are colorful and strong people who constantly have to come out in order to be themselves in the face of a judgmental society. I hope to capture the feelings of these individuals and the struggles that people in the community face. To create this art, I used my own experiences and others in community to get an understanding of the feelings portrayed in the pieces.
