

Sweet Toxins

Photography, by definition, is “painting with light”. This is exactly what I have done for this series of chemical paintings. My intent is to make people actively think and explore their subconscious thoughts, which will be brought to the surface. This series of work solely came from my own instinct and experimentation, leading to the idea that onlookers may discover my own subconscious feelings upon evaluation. These paintings have the ability to elicit emotions and provoke discussion, all the while feeding off of the viewers’ energy.

Tarot Cards

Tarot cards give insight of the future to those who seek it. Whether it is a fortune teller or yourself, readings are always open to interpretation. To achieve some understanding while allowing flexibility of meaning, I have created my own deck of tarot cards. Defining features of classic tarot cards have been changed to allocate more meaning involving my personal life, as well as a multitude of meanings within each card. The cards contain a mix of influential people and important defining traits, moments, and interests of my personal life. My work is interactive by allowing the viewers, not only to get a view into who I am, but to allow them to find meaning in each card for their life.
